

WELL Health Announces Donation Matching Up to $50,000 due to rise in COVID-19 Cases

As the number of COVID cases continues to rise across the country, WELL Health is committed to supporting at risk individuals in the community.

To that extent, WELL Health has launched its donation matching program to help non-profit organizations support the homeless, hungry, and hurting during these difficult times. WELL Health will match up to $50,000 in donations to the following organizations:

- CityReach Care Society: BC based charity that serves vulnerable and low-income populations through various programs including meals to go and food hamper delivery during the pandemic.
- Participation House: Ontario based organization providing support to adults with physical and developmental disabilities, which is currently experiencing a COVID outbreak.
- Union Gospel Mission: BC based charity which continues to provide meals, shelter, and outreach programs for those experiencing poverty, homelessness, or addiction during the pandemic.

If you would like to get involved, please follow one of the links above to make a direct donation to the organization. Once complete, please complete our online form, including the receipt of your donation, and we will contact you once the donation has been matched.

For any questions on the program, please contact community@well.company.
